For Love's Sake Only.
If thou must love me, let it be for naught Except for love's sake only. Do not say "I love her for her smile—her look—her way of speaking gently—for a trick of thought That falls in well with mine, and certes brought A sense of pleasant ease on such a day."
For these things in themselves, Beloved may Be changed, or change for thee—and love, so wrought, May be unwrought so. Neither love me for Thine own dear pity's wiping my cheeks dry—
A creature might forget to weep, who bore Thy comfort long, and lose thy love thereby.
But love me for love's sake, that evermore Thou mayest love on throughout eternity.
—E. B. Browning.

THE OLD CONTINENTALS.

By GUY H. MACMASTER.

Guy Humphrey MacMaster was born at Clyde, N. Y., January 31, 1829, and died in Richmond, Va., September 13, 1887. Graduated at Hamilton College in 1851, he became known by his "Carmen Balladum," or "The Old Continentals," but abandoned his literary pursuits for the law, was elected county judge and surrogate. He published "General Sullivan's Indian Expedition" and "The Professor's Guest Chamber." His best-known poems are "Dream of Thanksgiving Eve," "The Commanders" and the following:

In their ragged regimentals Stood the old Continentals, Yielding not,
When the grenadiers were lunging, And like hail fell the plunging Cannon shot;
Of the isles
From the smoky night encampment bore the banner of the rampant Unicorn.
And grimmer, grimmer, grimmer, rolled the roll of the drummer Through the morn!

But with eyes to the frontal, And with guns horizontal,
Stood our sires;
And the balls whistled deadly,
And in streams flashing redly Blazed the fires;
As the swift Billows drift
Drove the dark battle breakers o'er the green-sodded acres Of the plain,
And louder, louder, louder, cracked the black gunpowder, Cracking again!

Now like smiths at their forges Labor'd red St. George's Cannoneers,
And the "villainous salt-peter" Rang a fierce, discordant meter Round their ears;
Like the roar
On a shore,
Rose the Horse Guards' clangor, as they rode in roaring anger On our flanks;
Then higher, higher, higher, burned the old-fashioned fire Through the ranks!

And the old-fashioned colonel Galloped through the white infernal Powder cloud;
His broadsword was swinging,
And his brazen throat was ringing, Trumpet-loud:
Then the blue Bullets flew,
And the trooper jackets reddened at the touch of the leaden Rifle breath,
And rounder, rounder, rounder, roared the iron six-pounder, Hurling death!

hearing of the argument of counsel. Mr.
Harry Smith is defending the prisoner, while Commonwealth's Attorney L. O.
Wendenburg is looking out for the prosecution.

Patterson went to the stand in his own behalf yesterday morning, but made a very poor witness. He claimed that he and Miss Crittenden were sweethearts and that he was innocent of the crime with which he was charged.

mainly character witnesses.
The alleged crime is said to have been committed on the 10th of June, 1902.

WRIT OF ERROR IN MILL-DAM CASE

Supreme Court Takes Action in Noted Cause From Charlotte.

NORFOLK & WESTERN TO-DAY
Appeal Case From Corporation Commission Will Be Heard By High Tribunal.

In the Supreme Court of Appeals yesterday a writ of error and supersedeas was granted in the case of the Jeremy Improvement Company vs. Commonwealth involving the removal of an ancient mill dam said to have flooded certain public highways in Charlotte county, creating marshes and breeding noxious disease and thereby endangering the lives of the citizens of the community, and of visitors to the State experimental farm, located nearby.

The mill operated by the Jeremy Company, is situated at Laxe Station, on Roanoke Creek, on the line of the Southern Railway. The dam stretches across the creek three-quarters of a mile above.
It was originally constructed in 1733, but the location has since been slightly changed. The appellant points out that during the hundred or more years of the existence of the dam there was with one exception manifested no disposition on the part of the citizens to complain until the present proceedings arose. This one exception was an indictment brought in 1899, long unprosecuted and finally dismissed.

Upon complaint of five citizens of Charlotte county, a special grand jury was recently called, and in the trial in the Circuit Court, the Jeremy Company was fined $25 for creating a public nuisance, and it was ordered that the dam be cut down and removed. The contention of the complainants was that the dam was located near two public highways of the county as well as near the experimental farm owned by the State of Virginia, and that its continuance had permitted the waters of Roanoke Creek and mill pond to overflow the adjacent land and also the public highway leading from Massingford to Reesee, with the result that the land was sown and marshy and filled with noxious weeds and putrid vegetation, corrupting and infecting the air, causing malignant fever, chills and other loathsome diseases, and threatening the residents of the community and the visitors to the farm.

The attorneys for the Jeremy Improvement Company are W. C. Carrington and McGuire & Kelly, of this city.

Tidewater Case.

The appeal of the Norfolk and Western Railway, from the decision of the Corporation Commission, allowing to the Tidewater Railway Company grade crossing over the tracks of the appellants near South Norfolk, will be argued in the Supreme Court to-day. Important questions of law involved have attracted considerable attention to this case.

In its appeal, the Norfolk and Western claims that the commission erred in holding that, under the law, it is claimed by the appellants that the commission should have absolute an unequal right in crossing the property of another railway company, without first instituting proceedings to condemn the property right, and that the crossing would not take any property essentially to the purposes of the Norfolk and Western Railway. It is claimed by the appellants that the commission should have ordered an overhead crossing wherever it was decided that two roads should cross, this being the established policy of the State, and all presumptions being against grade-crossings.

The attorneys for the Norfolk and Western, are Robert M. Hughes, Eppa Hunton, Jr., Lucian H. Cooke, and Joseph I.
Doran.

Opinions To-day.

Several important opinions may be rendered by the court to-day, though this is by no means certain. It is the regular opinion day, but being the first Thursday in the session of the court, this opinion may not be handed down yet.
The proceedings yesterday were as follows:

Robinson vs. Commonwealth, fully argued by F. S. Collier, for the plaintiff in error, and submitted.

Harding vs. Commonwealth, argued by T. J. Downing and John W. Johnson, Jr., for the plaintiff in error and the Attorney-General for the Commonwealth, and submitted.

Next case to be called:
Norfolk and Western Railway Company vs. Tidewater Railway Company, being No. 1 on the Corporation Commission docket and Bellenot vs. Laubach Exors.
No. 21 on argument docket.

Mrs. Knapp Quite Rich.

Mrs. Knapp, wife of superintendent of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, is very rich with an inheritance from her father, and it is very likely that she may have to go to a hospital for treatment.

day with a new innovation—a digest or index of current periodicals arranged at great labor by the Library staff.

About eighty-eight monthlies and twenty-two or more weeklies are received regularly at the Library. To the student seeking the latest expressions of experts upon a given subject or to a casual reader searching for something agreeable to his own peculiar tastes, the task of plunging blindly into this mass of periodicals was appalling, indeed. The need for a carefully prepared index has been long felt, and is now satisfied. About eight days' of work were necessary on the magazines, but it was done and will nowover the magazines, a permanent feature of the Library from this time on.

Two lists were prepared, one for the monthlies and one for the weeklies. The magazines were gone over carefully and the notable articles arranged under separate heads as follows:

Virginia and Her Citizens.
Questions of the Day.
History and Biography.
Library Work.
Fiction.
Art.
Political Issues.
Agriculture.
Philosophy.
Science.

Lists of articles are given under each heading, with the name of the magazine and the page on which it is to be found. By this means an investigator interested in the subject of education for instance, can see at a glance what has been written within the current week or month upon this subject and can instantly secure the magazine and turn to the article. Under the first heading are given the articles written for the magazines by or about Virginia citizens or concerning topics of peculiar interest to this State.

The lists are attached to one of the big book-cases in the public reading room of the Library. As soon as possible suitable frames will be secured to hold them.
The lists will be changed regularly each week and month.
